

operational handicaps, such as distances and shortage of staff.

Generally one might say that the penal and correctional services of Israel are in good hands and are taking shape remarkably well despite many difficulties. What the future has in store for them is anyone's guess. More crime and more serious crime no doubt. But our good wishes go out to those devoted workers and enlightened administrators who are determined to produce a model system of treatment of offenders and are well on the way to this goal.

SCHOOL LEAVERS—I

"Ah well MacCrindle, we all have to leave some time."

Copyright: D. J. MCKEE, Torcot, George Lane, Plympton, Devon and The Times Publishing Company Ltd., London.