

News from the Centre for Crime and Justice Studies

INSPIRING CHANGE... 80 YEARS ON

2011 marks the Centre for Crime and Justice Studies' 80th birthday and we will be kicking off the celebrations with the annual event and AGM on Thursday 20th January.

Our mission for the coming years is to inspire enduring change by promoting understanding of social harm, the centrality of social justice and the limits of criminal justice. During 2011 we will be planning a number of opportunities to debate and map out visions for the future. Meet with us in London on 20 January join us for a glass of juice or wine. To find out more about speakers, venue and registering your attendance, visit the Centre's website.

WORKING FOR FREEDOM?

Works for Freedom – a web resource about supporting practice that empowers. Works for Freedom is one of the Centre's projects that aims to share and develop knowledge, with a focus on needs-based rather than punitive interventions. It kicks off this month with a blog from Centre director Richard Garside on 'Celebrating empowering practice'.

Take a look at the site at www.worksforfreedom.org

LIKE US? THEN SUPPORT US!

You can support our work by signing up for our free monthly e-bulletin, attending our events, using our publications, and all importantly – telling us what you think! If you want to take it one step further, then please consider joining the Centre as a member. From £25 per year you can receive Criminal Justice Matters as well as receiving access to additional resources and benefits. While we enjoy your moral support, a bit financial help never goes amiss!

HOME SWEET HOME

In case you missed it, the Centre for Crime and Justice Studies has relocated to new offices at 2 Langley Lane, London, SW8 1GB, 0207 840 6110.

www.crimeandjustice.org.uk

Photographs courtesy of Melinda Kerrison and Ed Brenton.