Professor David Nutt speech and reception

Ten years ago, in July 2009, Professor David Nutt gave the annual Eve Saville Lecture organised by the Centre of Crime and Justice Studies held at King's College, London.

A decade on, we are delighted to welcome Professor Nutt back to speak about what has changed for the good over this period, and what still needs to be done in order to see a world where drug control is rational and evidence-based; where drug use is better informed and drug users are understood; and where drugs are used to heal not harm.
